Excerpt from The Relation of Agricultural Education to Farm Organizations When I speak of education I do not mean simply that education secured in the schools of our country, although I am thoroughly convinced that of all the forces which contribute to a sane and sensible education, the most important and most fundamental force is our school system. There are people who learn to read and write and think correctly outside the classroom. Neither do I mean that education stops with the ability to read and write and think clearly. Considerable wisdom is acquired while learning to do these things, but real education depends upon the use to which this ability is put. Our Government is coming to a keener appreciation of this fact and we are extending our system of education to help citizens to use this ability to think better. The Government's recognition of the necessity of continuing education beyond the classroom is shown in the appropriations it makes for the dissemination of new information to adults. Straight thinking can not be done unless up-to-date information is available. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
