GERM PLASM EVALUATION PROGRAM, VOL. 11: PROGRESS REPORT NO. 11 (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Germ Plasm Evaluation Program, Vol. 11: Progress Report No. 11 A vast array of both resources and cattle breeds are available for beef production in the United States. Although feeding concentrates has provided for a relatively high degree of uniformity in the growing-finishing segment of beef production, resources used for cow-calf production have remained and will continue to remain very diverse. In the United States, stocking rates range from one cow per 2 acres or less to only one cow per 300 or 400 acres because of differences in climate, land, and feed resources. The germ plasm base for beef cattle production in North America was broadened considerably during the 1970s, primarily, as a result of the introduction of new breeds of European origin made possible by the development of appropriate quarantine facilities and procedures by Agriculture Canada. The newly introduced breeds, in addition to those already available, provide a wide range of performance characteristics in beef cattle.
