Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Visit Continuation Rates, Inter Visit Times, and Their Managerial Implications to Family Planning Administrators: A Case Study of Atlanta Family planning time survival rates have been applied extensively to evaluate the effectiveness of various methods or programs. Visit continuation rates have received less attention. In this paper it will be argued that visit continuation rates are of great usefulness to the family planning administrator. Relevant dimensions along which to segment the family planning population with regard to visit continuation rates are investigated. After studying the distribution of inter visit times, various management decision areas are discussed where visit continuation rates can help the family planning administrator. The areas considered are forecasting and planning, evaluation of program changes and program effectiveness, allocation of follow up effort, and finally, policy decisions.
