

Kabir and the Kite: The Adventures of a Boy Who Dreams of Things Beyond

By Kali Kalam

Kali Kalam Press. Paperback. Condition: New. Aziza (illustrator). 94 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.2in. Kabir is a young boy who daydreams about life beyond his small town in the middle of India. He sees and experiences things that others cannot. He explains how he is able to experience the world from the vantage point of his beloved kite named Pavan. Kabir's teacher and family members are puzzled by his imagination. No one believes his stories, except for his classmate and friend Radha who lives across the street. Everyone else around Kabir ridicules him and criticizes him for playing with kites instead of working harder at school and home. One day his brother rips up the fragile paper kite after an argument. No one seems to understand his pain. Eventually, fed up with the constraints of his small town life, Kabir decides to leave Soranpur for a now-or-never adventure. . . In a story that children everywhere will relate to, Kabir and the Kite promises to spark the imagination and inspire the young at heart of all ages. This item ships from multiple locations.
