General Accounting Office, 1999. OCLC Number: (OCoLC)43454753 Subject: Administrative agencies -- United States. Excerpt: . . . B-282850 estimates it reported. The responsible OMB branch chief stated that although he did not recall what the up-front costs for this recommendation specifically encompassed, these costs typically consist of buyouts ( i. e. , financial incentives of up to 25, 000 for employees who voluntarily leave the federal government ), lease breakage costs, and moving expenses. According to OMB, consistent with its normal budget practices, OMB Lacked examiners generally did not retain documentation for NPR savings Documentation and estimates. The budget examiners were unable to document estimates for four of the six recommendations we reviewed, constituting 21. 8 billion in Reported Estimates savings claims. Instead, the OMB examiners attempted to reconstruct how Incorrectly they thought the savings had been estimated through approximating rather than replicating savings estimates. OMB did, however, provide documentation on the estimated savings for two of the six recommendations we reviewed. These recommendations were to reorganize USDA ( with estimated savings of 770 million ) and to redirect the DOE laboratories priorities ( with estimated savings of 6. 996 billion ). Even when documentation for the NPR savings estimates was available, OMB could not always provide complete information about how the estimates were calculated. For example, the responsible OMB branch chief could not specifically remember what comprised the up-front costs shown on documentation for the recommendation to reorganize USDA. The NPR savings claims for both cases where OMB provided documentation were reported incorrectly. These errors led NPR to understate the estimated savings from those recommendations. One of the errors involved...
