Excerpt from The Magazine of Christian Literature, Vol. 4: April, 1891, to September, 1891 The question I have written at the head of this paper may be supposed to be one of those which are often said to answer them selves that is to say, they suggest alternative answers which are either too obviously true or too obviously absurd to need stating. Thus: Is it worth while to go on preaching? Might elicit the retort, When the Christian religion, both doctrinal and practical, is acknowledged to be an obsolete delusion 1 Or again, When our preachers are so stupid and incompetent that they neither know what to say nor how to say it! Or again, When faith cometh by hearing, and without faith men must perish everlastingly 1 Or the question might be simply set aside as having no longer any serious practical interest. Rightly or wrongly, it may be said even Christian people are tired of sermons; they no longer care for theology it is enough for them if they can achieve religion. Anyhow,...
