Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Encyclopedia of Biography of New York: A Life Record of Men and Women Whose Sterling Character and Energy and Industry Have Made Them Preeminent in Their Own and Many Other States Of Revolutionary ancestry, a veteran of the great war which firmly cemented the States of the Union into an invincible band of brothers, a business man of the highest rank, and a citizen beyond reproach, Thomas R. Proctor, builded his character well, and his record is a precious heritage to his family, his many friends and to his fellow citizens. From 1869, when he first came to the City of Utica, New York, until his passing more than half a century later, he was prominent in the business life of the city, reaching the very pinnacle of business success and usefulness. He will live in the history of Utica as a leading financier and business man, but, when the memory of his life shall become dim through the lapse of time, his name will always live in the 500 acres of park grounds consisting of Roscoe Conkling, Horatio Seymour, Addison C. Miller, Thomas Spriggs, Thomas R. Proctor and Frederick T. Proctor parks, which he donated to the people of Utica for all time. He came from a race of hardy New Englanders, his great-grandfather an officer of the Revolution and the founder of a town in the Vermont wilderness, to which he gave his own name, Proctorsville. The Proctors came to New England from England, and were of ancient lineage, men of rank and position, the family bearing arms, the following being a description given by Burke of the Proctor-Beauchamp arms, the families being related: Arms - Quarterly, first...
