

The Musical Education of the Child, Some Thoughts and Suggestions, for Teachers: Parents and Schools (Classic Reprint)

By Stewart Macpherson

Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. 66 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.1in. Excerpt from The Musical Education of the Child, Some Thoughts and Suggestions, for Teachers: Parents and Schools. The following pages represent in the main the substance of various lectures, addresses, and articles delivered or written during the last few years on certain aspects of the musical education of the young. In preparing them for issue in their present form, I have thought it wise to preserve the informal style which best fitted the conditions under which they were originally presented. I quite realize that if the intention in the first place had been to set forth in book form the thoughts herein contained, they would often have been expressed somewhat differently. Feeling, however, that to alter their manner would tend in all probability to destroy whatever directness they might possess, I have ventured to leave them virtually as they first appeared, merely adding a few fresh points which seemed to drive home more completely the arguments advanced. It will doubtless be noticed that some overlapping of idea occurs from time to time in the course of these essays, and that a topic developed...
