Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .It is 2028: The England Union, mostly bordered by salt water, comprises England, Wales and Northern Ireland. The remnants of the European Union borders to the East and independent Scotland - sits lonely but proud to the North. England is a nation of HAVES and HAVE-NOTS and the 1 m alright governing class is made up of inept, cynical, leaderless job-worthies . In successive political colours Westminster bumbles on, with HAVE-NOT tax payers seeing themselves as cash cows; financing vote buying benefits and privileges. National on-the-streets demand for change inspires the Representative Peoples Authority - the RPA. With a simple manifesto and without bloodshed, they oust the political party system and dramatically clear the green benches of Westminster. In power and in a hurry, the RPA meet manifesto obligation to begin radical reformation of the nation. Key concerns are tackled first: law and order; border control; public office sinecures; inconsistent sentencing, injustice and unfairness. (GCHQ)- Government s communication HQ - provides real time feedback to a rejuvenated Westminster. Their God like computer system is piped 24/7 into Downing Street. Part of the GCHQ service is the Perception of Public Support. Nourished by everything traversing the ether, the POPS programme analysis sifts, collates and graphically displays the degree of support for every proposed legislative action. With public demand - and POPS approval - an early and dramatic compliance is an execution: the first hanging for many years. As the clock creeps towards George Dent s death, television shows his common-law wife Sharon. Defeated; she waits with their two infants, outside the prison gates. This filming galvanises POPS reaction against the hanging. But in the death cell George Dent launches...
