Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Muscle Spasm and Degeneration in Intrathoracic Inflammations: Their Importance as Diagnostic Aids and Their Influence in Producing and Altering the Well Established Physical Signs, Also a Consideration of Their Part in the Causation of Changes in the Bony Thorax The material in this monograph is, with a few changes, the same as that which appeared in Brauer s Beitrage zur Tuberkulose, Band XXII, Heft 1, 1912. It represents original observations made by the author during the past three years. The observations and practical suggestions here recorded are based on several thousand physical examinations. They have been carefully tested and checked by other methods of diagnosis. The author gives them to the medical profession in this form at the earnest solicitation of many of his colleagues, hoping that they may prove of value in furthering diagnosis, especially of intrathoracic diseases; and particularly hoping that the appreciation of the early changes in the muscles covering the apex and in the diaphragm may aid in the early diagnosis of tuberculosis. Should the practical suggestions herein made fail to furnish the aid in clinical diagnosis for which the author hopes, he still believes that the theoretical considerations presented may be of value to the profession. The facts herein presented are not wholly new. Many of the principles and conditions have been previously described. The author only claims originality in that he has worked them out as an independent observer and has made application of them which had not heretofore been made. The importance of this work does not rest with that which is written here, but lies in the far-reaching effect which it may have on diagnosis as a...
