Excerpt from Improvement Era, Vol. 10: Organ of Youth Mens Mutual Improvement Association; September, 1907 Strive with the leaders of the church forever, and as they drifted down the stream of apostasy, they themselves recognized the fact that God would have nothing to say to them. To explain his silence, and maintain their ecclesiastical standing with their followers, they invented the theory that personal and direct revelation was no longer necessary, - that God had nothing to communicate to his children beyond what was found in the Bible. Men are ever prone to believe a lie rather than a truth, and as this theory explained the prevailing conditions in the church, it grew into a cardinal doctrine of the apostate churches of Christendom. The dead letter of the Bible became the sole standard, and was substituted for the living voice of God. As a result, the thousand and one churches, each and all, worship the written word and claim the Bible as the authority for their respective con icting and separate tenets. If these churches would know of the doctrine, let them listen to...
