Rosedog Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. This book analyzes the importance of how early social, emotional and physical experiences have a direct effect on the complete overall development of a child and how they groom the child for their lifelong journey. It also describes the purpose of understanding the fundamental need to invest in young children, so as to maximize their future well-being. Readers will not only realize there is yet a lot you can do with your child but they will also be able to curb the guilt many other books tend to bring about in us. Learning is a lifelong process--it s never too late for anything! Are you helping your child to grow with a unique personality or are you preparing your child to be what you want him to be? Ask yourself this question and be honest with yourself. Whether you are a parent or an educator, are you grooming the child to excel academically and get the best grades? Or are you bringing out the child s true self; working on the child s inherent uniqueness, supporting them to think out of the box and naturally progress in all aspects of life? Many parents and educators today overlook the importance of allowing a child to grow like a child, as they are constantly worried about meeting academic benchmarks, getting their child admitted to the best of schools, making sure the child is taking part in all sports so as to get on the school football or swimming team! In this race, adults forget that each child is God-gifted with unique qualities and talents. It is our responsibility and duty to assist each child, allowing them to shine and reach new horizons.
