Excerpt from Sack and Destruction of the City of Columbia, S. C: To Which Is Added a List of the Property Destroyed General Johnston was by nature, no less than training and education, the very best of the Confederate generals to be Opposed to General Sherman. To the nervo-sanguine temperament, eager and impetuous, of the latter, he opposed a moral and physical nature - calm, sedate, circumspect cool, vigilant and wary - always patient and watchful of his moment never rash or precipitate, but ever firm and decisive - his resources all regulated by a self-possessed will, and a mind in full possession of that military coup d'etat which, grasping the remotest relations of the field, is, probably, the very first essential to a general having the control of a large and various army.
