Excerpt from Senate Documents, Vol. 7: 67th Congress, 2nd Session; December 5, 1921-September 22, 1922 He further pointed out that it will be worthy Of a free, enlightened, and at no distant period a great nation to give to mankind the magnanimous and too novel example of a people always guided by an exalted justice and benevolence. Washington had vision and an abiding faith in America. But he realized that to fulfill his Vision Of a great nation the people as well as the leaders must have character founded upon justice and benevolence or good will. The nation must have virtue if it is to enjoy permanent happiness and prosperity. Nobility of character is as essential in a nation as in an individual. Upon us lies the responsibility of building up this character in our people, of fostering the Virtues of the past - the solid, sturdy qualities that built up the nation and which alone can preserve it.
