Forgotten Books, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from The Review of Reviews for Australasia, Vol. 16: June, 1900 For resident students, in addition to scholastic progress the two ends sought are the discipline of the character and a training in ladylike habits and accomplishments. Great importance, therefore, is attached to the social life of the College. It is made refined, stimulating, happy; with the result that the years of. College training for a girl who has resided in the Methodist Ladies College are, almost without exception, a golden stage in her life, full of happy memories and friendships. College life, indeed, represents a happy wedlock between hard work and cheerful relaxation. There are social evenings amongst the girls themselves; tea parties in Liberty Hall; country picnics of a semi-botanic sort; seaside rambles, &c. The girls of the College come from refined and happy homes, and the College is administered so as to supply, as far as possible, all that the children of such homes can wish. A trained and excellent staff of servants is kept; an exquisite comfort and cleanliness is maintained throughout the College; a professional...
