COMPUTED TOMOGRAPHY AS A METHOD IN CONSERVATION AND RESTORATION

Computed tomography as a method in conservation and restoration

Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | One of the goals of today's conservation-restoration of cultural property (heritage) is to collect as much information before the intervention in cultural heritage. Non-invasive methods that do not cause damage to cultural property in any way are used for this purpose. CT is increasingly used as a method of three-dimensional display in conservation - restoration. In addition to "diagnostic" purposes, In this book, CT has been used as a method of observing...
