It hopes its present friends may help to bring about many an introduction. It boasts of the selectness of its company and of the fact that only the dull can ever forsake this numerous and congenial coterie. It asks little of its friends; but promises and gives much in return. So with best greetings for another bright and prosperous year to all, it promises to make each one prouder than ever of his honored ancestral blood. WE omit in this number our wonted Historical Pilgrimage in order to give room for the article on a historical landmark that has before been mentioned in these pilgrimage articles, but about which the correct data was missing to give it proper notice then. Prof. Brinser, the grandson of the once locally noted bishop, has furnished us this sketch, and so we retrace our...
