Archaeology in Washington

By Ruth Kirk

University of Washington Press. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 168 pages. Dimensions: 10.9in. x 8.4in. x 0.5in. Archaeology--along with Native American traditions and memories--holds a key to understanding early chapters of the human story in Washington. This all-new book draws together and brings up to date much of what has been learned about the states prehistory and the environments early people experienced. It presents a sample of sites representing Washingtons geographic regions and touches on historical archaeology, including excavations at fur-trade forts and the Whitman mission, and Cathlapotle, a Columbia River village visited by Lewis and Clark. The authors portray the discovery of a mastodon butchered by hunters on the Olympic Peninsula 14, 000 years ago; the nearly 13, 000-year-old Clovis points in an East Wenatchee apple orchard; an 11, 200-year-old Marmes Man in the Palouse; and the controversial Kennewick Man, more than 9, 000 years old, eroded out of the riverbank at Tri-Cities. They discuss a 5, 000-year-old camas earth oven in the Pend Oreille country; 5, 000 years of human habitation at Seattles Metro sewage treatment site; the recovery at Hoko River near Neah Bay of a 3, 200-year-old fishnet made of split spruce boughs and tiny stone knife...
