There is something in the application and direction of all these accomplishments which judgment must supply, and which neither instruction, example, nor even experience will bestow. It is probable that many would readily grant me (what yet I do not ask, being hardly of the fame opinion) that of all the characters just now mentioned, that of a man of fashion or politeness is the most supersicial, and what may be most easily attained by imitation and habit. Yet even here nothing is more easy than to see the dominion of judgment and good sense, or the prevalence of folly and indiscretion. That want of presence of mind or embarrassment, which is often the effect of modesty or bashfulness; nay, even the errors and blunders which visibly proceed from ignorance and mistake of the reigning mode, are not half so absurd and ridiculous,...
