Forgotten Books, United States, 2016. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Report on the Hillgrove Gold-Field Special features of the report, exclusive of the main idea of the work, consist of notes on the numerous dykes which intersect the sedimentary formations the prevailing types of lode formations the antimony and scheelite lodes descriptions of the machinery; and the methods of travelling on the steep hill sides. As a starting point, and a basis of work, I had the partially completed map of Mr. J. A. Watt, m.a., b.sc., formerly one of the Geological Surveyors in this Department. Having made use of his main east and west line of junction of the eruptive and sedimentary rocks, I preferred to undertake most of the work de novo, as it was necessary to get well acquainted with the surface before attempting the underground survey. With one or two exceptions, our boundary lines, c., are fairly coincident. The various junctions of eruptive and sedimentary rocks to the east in the difficult country of the Four-mile Creek, and those also to the south of Bakers Creek, were, previous to my reconnaissance, a blank page. For these I am alone responsible, as also for the squaring-up of the map in all directions. The broken character of the country, the veiling of the various lines of junction under masks of shingle, and the great metamorphism of the rocks, necessitated a far greater expenditure of time than would be required for the examination of ordinary country. Besides these, the absence of landmarks was felt, and some of the junctions are, at best, only approximately true. I was enabled to secure a fairly good series of photographic negatives, dealing with subjects of mining and geological interest....
