

The Church and New Media Blogging Converts, Online Activists, and Bishops Who Tweet

By Brandon Vogt

Our Sunday Visitor. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 208 pages. Dimensions: 7.9in. x 5.2in. x 0.7in. Facebook has over 750 million users. Twitter hosts more than 350 billion tweets each day. Today alone, people will view more than two billion videos on YouTube. And in the past year, Americans sent 1.8 trillion text messages. We're experiencing the most explosive communication shift since the printing press. What does this mean for the Church? How can Christians harness these new tools to reach out, to teach, to cultivate community, to change the world? Following Pope Benedict's call to set sail on the digital continent, The Church and New Media explores the benefits and dangers of New Media, while guiding Christians through this new digital landscape. The book features more than a dozen contributors including: -- Cardinal Sean O'Malley, O. F. M. Cap. with the book's Foreword-- Archbishop Timothy M. Dolan with the book's Afterword-- Brandon Vogt on the digital continent and New Media's benefits and dangers-- Fr. Robert Barron on engaging the secular online world-- Jennifer Fulwiler on blogging her way from atheism to Catholicism-- Marcel LeJeune on using New Media to connect young adults with the Church-- Mark Shea on the benefits...
