Reviews

This publication is really gripping and exciting. It really is basic but unexpected situations in the 50 % in the book. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Excerpt: . . . all the buildings save University Hall, Peabody Hall and the womens dormitory must, except as very temporary and highly unsatisfactory expedients, be disregarded in the future development of the University. The future needs of the University for buildings are so great that the Commission feels that it would be very unwise to spend any money for the erection of further dormitories for young men or any considerable sum for the repair of the present ones. A unit of a new agricultural building is the first requirement; a unit of a new engineering building the second; a unit of a new gymnasium the third, and a new science hall to house chemistry and physics the next. Of little less importance is a library building, new barns, a greenhouse, shops, a heating and lighting plant, stock judging pavilion, home economics building, auditorium, and additional dormitories for young women. In fact, to the Commission it appears that with respect to buildings the University of Arkansas must begin all over again. A building program with adequate financial provisions running through a series of years, needs to be adopted. A University of Arkansas, so far as buildings are concerned, is yet to be erected. It should be built according to some plan that will satisfy aesthetic tastes and answer the needs of the various types of work conducted by the University. Recommendations 1. That a competent building and landscape architect be employed to lay out a comprehensive building plan...
